Progress of Work at the Paris . Exhibition.

> [BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.] LONDON, April 28, 1878.

The HEBALD's special correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs that Prince Gortschakoff is only feigning illness for the purpose of avoiding a formal meeting with the English Ambassador, Lord Loftus, to the end that he may not commit his country to any disadvantageous concession.

BUCHAREST TO BE OCCUPIED.

It is also regarded as possible that the Russians will occupy Bucharest to-day (Sunday) under the pretext that it is a necentary act of precaution to maintain order. THINGS HOPED FOR BUT NOT SEEN.

It is hoped at Constantinople that General Todleben, who succeeds the Grand Duke Nicholas, will be able to arrive at an agreement with the English in regard to the military details of a mutual withdrawal. The Russians demand, in the event of withdrawal, the wide zone left neutral between them and the Turks, Saivet Pacha has gone to confer with the Grand Duke Nicholas and General Todleben.

THE INSURRECTION.

Intelligence has been received in Constantinople that the Mussulman insurgents have surprised a Russian encampment near Philippopol's and taken 1,000 prisoners and four guns. They are now marching toward Samakoff. M. Onou has suggested that the Porte should offer the insurgents amnesty in the event of their laying down their arms.

UNDOING RUSSIA'S WORK.

The Times, in its leading editorial article yesterday morning, comments on the despatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent, in which it is stated that one issue out of the present complications consists in undoing much of Russia's work and giving the rest a European instead of a specifically Russian character; that another consists in what is called the principle of equivalents or compensa that the latter solution is the one Russia desires while Great Britain seems resolved to insist upon

WHAT WILL ENGLAND ANSWER? The North German Gazetle, of Berlin, says:gramme. At the outbreak of the war England honorably laid down her interests as the guide and measure of her attitude. Since the conclusion of peace she has been exclusively parading in the cothurn of so-called European Interests. A MYSTERIOUS POLICY.

"No one knows how those interests are to be described. Her programme, the color of which England must sooner or later make known, and which has already assumed very various aspects, from the language of the duferent English Ministers, will ultimately be decisive of the Eastern crisis.

ENGLAND AND THE BALTIC. vill not concede the opinion that the despatch of a British flect to the Baltic, where many neutral interests might be affected, would render the situation immeasurably more complicated."

DODGING THE QUESTION. Referring to the Italian proposition that England state her views, the Times says :- "It would be jutile and inconsistent with our position to propose any scheme until the main principle of ropean control has been conceded, without which no scheme could acquire validity or sanc-

GERNANY STILL MEDIATING. The Agence Russe says the assertions that Ger. man mediation is broken off are faise. It has attained its object by smoothing the way for an exchange of views between the Cabinets, which interchange is now proceeding.

NOT AN EVIDENCE OF INSURRECTION.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times, in a letter to that paper, says :- "I observe that the foreign press devote much attention to the street disorders which recently occurred in St. Petersburg and Moscow. Some organs seem to regard them as symptoms of a dangerous revolusignificance. There is not the slightest danger of public tranquility being seriously disturbed. Any inger of that kind will first appear, if it appear at all, when prices rise and taxation is AUSTRIA DRLIBERATING. Various Austrian and Hungarian Ministers had long interviews in Vienna throughout yesterday, and the Hungarian Minister of Finance conferred with several financiers.

ENGLAND AGAIN DISAPPOINTS. The Vienna Political Correspondence's corre-spondent at St. Petersburg, writing under date of April 23, says the negotiations relative to mutual withdrawal from Constantinople had then taken an uniavorable turn in consequence of England suddenly claiming that the seet should not retire outside of the Dardanelles, and thus going back from the principle which she had already accepted, in the same way as she had withdrawn from the principle of a preliminary conference, which she also at one time accepted.

RUSSIAN WAR VESSELS.

A GIGANTIC SCHEME ON FOOT AT BAN FRAN-CISCO TO FIT OUT SHIPS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27, 1878) It is reported this evening, by persons who claim to be in the plot, that, in anticipation of the breaking out of hostilities between England and Russia, a movement is on foot to fit out a privateer in this port to prey on British commerce. Letters of marque from the Russian government are already here in blank, waiting for the declaration of war to be filled out. of a number of steamers now laid up in Almeda Creek.

on the opposite side of the bay.

Commissions of officers are also here and funds to parry out the project. Over two hundred men have signed articles blading themselves to engage in the enterprise, the recruits being mostly drawn from the idio classes, who are ready for any thing. Captain Waddell, late of the wrecked Pacific Mail Steamer City of San Francisco, formerly in command of the rebel privateer Shenandoah, is mentioned as the probable commander, and Captain Lapielge, late of the Pacific Mail Steamship service, is named as one of the officers.

READY WHEN THE HOUR COMES.

The persons profess to mean business and will be prepared to move on the instant war is declared. From other sources it is learned that the Russia corvette Craysser, now lying in position, is prepared for instant action, and the object of her long delay here is to obtain the carliest possible news of the outbreak of bostilities and at once go to sea and be in wait for British vessels bound to this port. It is understood that, with the exception of the corvette Opal and the small gunbout Rocket at Victoria and a frigate ship, which is supposed to be somewhere in the neighborhood of Panama, there is not a single British war vessel in the North Pacific to interfere with the designs of the Russian cruiser, and it is possible that the vessels at Victoria would be retained there for defensive purposes. .

A CENTRAL PARK SPECTRE.

A rustling among the underbrush at the side of one last evening, attracted the attention of Sergeant Lenz, of the Park police, who caught a glimpse of a white form darting through the bushes. A number of stories which he had heard from fellow offivisitants in their solitary night patrols, flashoo through the Sergeaut's mind and for a moment be was rooted to the spot. Then, recollecting that it lacked several hours of the time when supernatural beings are generally reputed to take their earthly perambulations, he summoned sufficient resolution to follow the fleeing figure, which dashed among the trees, down hills and behind rocks. After a chase of nearly ten minutes the Sergeant was so near nearly ten minutes the Sergeant was so near to the figure that he was about to lay his hands on it, but it suddenly slipped behind a hill, whence it was followed by the intrepid Sergeant. Here the figure stopped and Lenz stretched out his hard to seize it, but instead of meeting with yielding air his hand encountered a solid substance. In a pitcous femiline voice the woman, for such was the sex of the figure, begged the Sergeant to let her go, but he refused and informed her that she was violating a Park ordinance in waiting through the Park in her present babilineants. Compelling her to don her clothes, which were lying under a tree where he first saw her, he took her to the Arsenal, where she gave her name as Anne Morias, iwently eight years old, of Henry Street, and could not account to ree strange.
